

Sustainable Serendipity

He's been called a 'maverick genius' by his critics. Delhi's own Manav Gupta has stunned the art world with his latest installation Rain, the Ganga Waterfront along Time Machine, using thousands of clay lamps and chillums flowing along the steps of the courtyard of the India Habitat Centre.

"The humble clay bowl is taken for granted, much like the Ganga," says Gupta.

The gigantic installation now travels to London, Des Moines, and San Francisco. Manav Gupta is pipped to be the next big thing in art, insiders say.
